Wristbands disappoint fans of the royal couple

Wristbands will be handed out to Calgarians waiting in line at the Max Bell tomorrow at 8 a.m. Two events, one being invitation only, require wristbands

KATIE TURNER
CALGARY@METRONEWS.CA

Exchanging handshakes and pleasantries with the royal couple likely won't be in the cards for many Calgarians, as two of three events require wristbands.

William and Kate will make the last pit stop of their Canadian tour in Calgary; however, a lap around the Stampede parade in a motorcade will be the only opportunity for the masses to catch a glimpse.

"My friend and I had planned a whole day (around) going to see them, so we looked up their entire schedule, even downloaded the app from the government," said Shirley, who wished to withhold her last name.

Shirley said that, because she has to work, she will not get a wristband.

"I'm looking at all these pictures from all the other stops they've made — I don't see anybody wearing wristbands. Why is this a Calgary thing?"

Beth Gignac, manager of arts and culture for the City of Calgary, said the federal government made the decision because the events are meant to be more intimate.

"They suggested a wristband process so that we can ensure a fair distribution to Calgarians," she said.

Spokespeople at the municipal, provincial and federal level could not confirm by press time whether other cities on the royal tour have handed out wristbands for similar events.

Wristband events

- 2,500 wristbands will be provided for people to attend the BMO Centre and 3,200 for people to attend Calgary Rotary Challenger Park for the official departure.
- The wristbands are free with a maximum of two wristbands per person.
- More information can be found at www.calgary.ca/royaltour.

Motorsports-park search revs up again

The right location for a new motorsports park in Calgary could play host to high-octane racing, conferences and maybe even an outdoor church mass or two.

That's according to Ald. Shane Keating, who brought forward a motion asking city administration to explore all possible locations for motor enthusiasts to rev their engines once the present lease at Race City runs out at year's end.

"The deadline's now," he said.

"We have to find something for them.... They have the same legitimacy to be in the City of Calgary ... as any other recreation form."

The plan is to turn the Race City land into expanded space for the Shepard Landfill's storm-water-management system.

Council had yet to make a decision on Keating's motion at press time. JEREMY NOLAIS

Future cloudy for dog rescue centre

Home-based dog-care facility could be shut down if owner doesn't obtain proper licence

JEREMY NOLAIS
CALGARY@METRONEWS.CA

Over the past decade, Donna Bamlett has rescued roughly 80 canines through her K9 Street Dog Rehab. Some were in need of emergency care; others were rescued from puppy mills.

But city officials have voiced concerns over her home-based operation and could shut it down if Bamlett does not obtain a proper business licence.

Kent Pallister, chief licence inspector for the city, admits it can be difficult to acquire proper land-use permits for an operation like Bamlett's, citing proximity to nearby residences as the primary concern.

"It's just a very difficult situation because what they're doing is for a noble cause," he said. "But if you take that out of it, it's like any other type of business or complaint that we have to look at.... It's a bit of a vicious circle."

Bamlett said she confirmed all potential issues with city reps years ago before she started the facility. She added that she has invested thousands of dollars into the operation and has returned no profit.

"It's not really fair," she said. "This isn't like any other business. It's an animal rescue."

Calgary making a grow of it

- Demand for community gardens is 'exploding'
- Unfortunately, that means long waiting lists

KATIE TURNER
@METRONEWS.CA

Those looking to get their hands dirty in a community garden could wait for years to land a plot as many communities have extensive waiting lists.

Georgina Jamieson, manager of the Cliff Bungalow-Mission community garden, says there are about 20 people waiting for a plot.

"This year, six spots became available and that was some people from 2009 that had applied," she said.

The situation has become the norm in many parts of the city, says Gael Blackhall, co-ordinator of the Community Garden Resource Network for the Calgary Horticultural Society. "Most gardens as they go into the season have a waiting list," she said.

The Community Garden Resource Network is working with 30 to 40 groups to help them establish a garden in their neighbourhood, Gael Blackhall says.

In 2008, there were 12 community gardens, both private and public.

"Three years later, in 2011 — I was just counting up — there's 101 public and private community gardens," Blackhall said. "Just a few weeks ago, there were 92. It's happening so fast."

Janet Melrose, garden animator with the Calgary Horticultural Society, said the growing trend is great to see.

"It's exploding," Melrose said. "You can see an expansion that's happening within these hubs in the city, which is really fantastic."

Seized animals returning to ranch

More than 400 animals will reportedly be returned to a ranch in the Drumheller region after being seized by the Alberta Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals over allegations of animal cruelty in April.

A lawyer for Graham Ranching Company Ltd. reportedly told a judge yesterday that the owners have secured the $160,000 that was required to have the animals returned.

The ranch owners must finish repairs to damaged fencing by July 14 or the ASPCA can begin the process of selling off the 270 head of cattle and 150 horses it seized. The ranch must also select an ASPCA-approved veterinarian to care for the animals. METRO

William has a splash in Sea King helicopter

Duke of Cambridge lands machine on water In light rain, royals meet well-wishers in Prince Edward Island

RYAN REMIORZ/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Prince William swapped his crisp jacket and tie for a jumpsuit and helmet and the throb of a Sea King helicopter yesterday as he donned a flight suit and practised a quintessentially Canadian manoeuvre — landing on the water.

The Duke of Cambridge climbed into the co-pilot's seat of a grey Sikorsky CH-124, its lower half sealed up with yellow tape, and plopped down repeatedly on the surface of Dalvay Lake, near the Gulf of St. Lawrence on the edge of Prince Edward Island.

With William at the controls, the chopper spent nearly an hour on the "waterbirding" move — sometimes turning circles on the water like a giant mechanical duck, windshield wipers clearing the spray from the windscreen, or performing a touch-and-go exercise that at times pushed the water levels nearly to the windows.

Waterbirding is an exercise that was invented in Canada to ensure Canadian Coast Guard pilots are equipped to deal with emergencies when operating over water. And if the number of times they tried it was any indication, the duke was certainly smitten with the technique.

Before taking off, the duke could be seen through the helicopter windows strapping in to the co-pilot's position as Kate — the Duchess of Cambridge — chatted and watched from a distance.

William is no stranger to the Sea King — as a flight lieutenant with the Royal Air Force, he's a fully qualified helicopter pilot who currently serves on board a British Sea King as a member of the British military's Search and Rescue Force.

"The Duke of Cambridge is, first and foremost, a search-and-rescue pilot, that's his job, and it's a job he's very proud to do," said press secretary Miguel Head.

While waterbirding isn't widely practised outside Canada, it's a manoeuvre that's known to search-and-rescue professionals and helicopter pilots around the world, he added.

"So when (William) took the decision to come to Canada, one of the things he actually asked to do was to do this, and it's a technique he'll be able to use in his job."

The demonstration took place at the Dalvay by-the-Sea resort, a frequent backdrop for the Anne of Green Gables movies — Kate is a big fan of the Lucy Maud Montgomery books — and CBC's Road to Avonlea TV series.

Defiant Ratko Mladic tossed from tribunal

AMEL EMRIC/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ Relatives of a man killed during the 1992-95 Bosnian war put up photos yesterday on a memorial in Bosnia.

United Nations judges threw Ratko Mladic out of his own arraignment yesterday after the former Bosnian Serb military chief shouted at them, defied their orders and refused to enter any plea to 11 charges of masterminding the worst atrocities of the Bosnian war.

With Mladic's chair in the courtroom empty, presiding Judge Alphons Orie entered not-guilty pleas, in line with the war crimes tribunal's rules for suspects who refuse to plead.

Mladic's contemptuous display drew anger from survivors of the 1992-95 Bosnian war and raised the prospect of another turbulent UN court trial. In Srebrenica — the Bosnian town where Mladic is accused of commanding troops who in 1995 killed some 8,000 Muslim men and boys in Europe's worst massacre since the Second World War — survivor Fadila Efendic called Mladic's behaviour salt in her wounds.

"We are made to suffer, to mourn our children, we are forced to watch him make a circus in the court," she said.

If convicted, the 69-year-old, making his second public appearance since Serbia extradited him to The Hague in late May, could face a sentence of up to life in prison. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Greece disables aid ship bound for Gaza

Activists on Canadian ship call on Ottawa to denounce what they call an unlawful act by the Greek government

The Greek coast guard has damaged a Canadian ship bound for Gaza, forcing it back to shore after ramming it against a cement pier, activists said yesterday.

Activists at first believed the ship was sinking as a result of the hard landing. While it appeared the damaged ship would stay afloat, it remained confined to a Greek port late yesterday after an unsuccessful attempt to reach Gaza.

The Tahrir, bearing at least 30 Canadians, left a Greek port early yesterday evening local time and was boarded 15 minutes later by armed officers from the Greek coast guard.

Within an hour, the ship was back at another Greek port, where supporters of its mission were gathering.

"They arrived back to land into a location ... where the coast guard forced them to go to. Not the original dock," Ehab Lotayef, a Montreal-based spokesman for the ship, told The Canadian Press in a telephone interview.

"They slammed it into the concrete, into the pierside."

Lotayef said several dozen activist passengers remained late yesterday on board the ship, which was damaged and leaking diesel.

"We are holding the Greeks responsible for all that — totally unjustified action by the Greek government, arm-twisted by the Israelis," he said.

"It is a setback but it's not the end of the road. The efforts will continue worldwide until this blockade ends."

The ship had left the Greek port of Agios Nikolaos. Days earlier, a Greek coast guard vessel took up a berth next to the Tahrir after its activists declared their intent to set sail after various delays.

Gas prices drive spike in car sales

Motorists spurn gas-guzzling trucks and SUVs for fuel-efficiency ◗ June sales soared for Top 3

Canada's leading automakers are reporting a strong rebound in sales last month after a weak performance in May.

Ford, General Motors and Chrysler of Canada saw their sales improve dramatically on an annual basis.

Ford Canada once again claimed the top spot with June sales that rose six per cent to 33,450 from 31,707 from year-before levels. That was its best June since 1989.

May was the only month of the year the automaker, along with many others, reported a decline in sales, led by falling truck sales. That led observers to suggest that high gas prices are forcing drivers to rein in purchases. Automakers have been reporting a boost in car sales for most of this year due to soaring fuel costs.

In June, Ford car sales were up 32 per cent, driven by sales of its Focus, Fusion, Taurus and Mustang. Truck sales, however, fell nearly four per cent.

General Motors Canada, Canada's second-best-selling automaker last month, said sales grew 12 per cent from a year ago, led by its Chevrolet Cruze and other fuel-efficient cars and crossovers. The company reported total sales of 27,865 vehicles, compared to 24,897 a year before.

Meanwhile, Chrysler Canada reported the largest improvement from year-ago sales. The company said its sales soared 27 per cent to 23,576 vehicles from 18,502 a year ago. That was its best June since 2005.

Fox hackers post 'Obama dead' hoax

Several false tweets about the assassination of U.S. President Barack Obama made for an embarrassing Fourth of July yesterday for Fox News.

"@BarackObama has just passed. The President is dead. A sad 4th of July, indeed. President Barack Obama is dead," read the first tweet posted by hackers who broke into a Fox News Twitter account early in the morning and said Obama had been shot and killed while campaigning in Iowa.

Subsequent tweets provided more fake details and said the president had been killed at "Ross's Restaurant in Iowa." The hackers signed off by wishing Vice-President Joe Biden good luck as America's new president.

The tweets remained on the account, with almost 35,000 followers, for more than six hours, until Fox News released a statement. A group calling itself Script Kiddies took responsibility.

Fox is frequently accused of inciting anti-Obama sentiment. Several commenters on its website expressed regret that the tweets were false.

Stock exchanges across the United States were shuttered for the national holiday, so news of the "assassination" had no effect on the market.

Bombardier coy about layoffs

Bombardier Transportation will unveil its plans today for Britain's lone railcar plant, but officials would not confirm that as many as 2,000 workers will lose their jobs at the factory in Derby.

The Berlin-based division of the transportation giant said it will first meet with union officials and then hold a news conference.

Four of five rail contracts at the plant will end by September and a consortium led by Bombardier recently lost a contract to supply 1,200 new Thameslink trains to rival Siemens.

The opposition Labour party has asked the coalition government to review naming the German rival as the preferred bidder. The government said it viewed the Siemens bid to be "the best value for money for taxpayers."

Bombardier spokesman Marc Laforge denied that today's company announcement is designed to put pressure on the government to award it the contract before the deal is finalized.

"We live with decisions and like anybody in that business, any competitors, we have to work accordingly with what we have in the backlog," he said in an interview.

The Thameslink contract was the second loss for the plant in more than two years.

SEEMED LIKE A GOOD IDEA AT THE TIME

SHE SAYS ...

JESSICA NAPIER
METRO

We all make mistakes. The chances of making those mistakes increase exponentially when alcohol is involved. In fact, the decisions you make during a night out on the town are almost exclusively regrettable.

Here are just a few of the things that you would never, ever do in real life (read: sober) but that seem like a really good idea at 2 a.m.

• Ask the DJ to play an obnoxious pop track from the mid-2000s — think Gwen Stefani's Hollaback Girl — and scream "THIS IS MY JAM" at anyone within earshot.

• Wear sunglasses indoors. Convince yourself that sunglasses are a fun prop and that wearing them at night will make people think you are a hilariously zany individual. If Corey Hart can do it, so can you.

• Get into a heated discussion about religion/politics/anything of a sensitive nature. Assume you are correct no matter how outlandish your point is. There is no reasoning with someone under the influence of drunk logic.

"Walk home barefoot through the city streets. Hepatitis be damned; your feet really hurt from wearing cheap heels all night long and five kilometres isn't really that far of a walk anyway."

• Order a pitcher of beer … for yourself. When the server asks: "What type of beer?" Respond with: "Surprise me."

• Get all confessiony and tell your best friend about that time you hooked up with her ex-boyfriend/brother/dad.

• Purchase a large pulled pork poutine with extra gravy or some other calorie-laden late-night snack that you will inevitably spill all over yourself. Not that it matters. One of your friends accidently poured a double vodka cranberry down your back an hour ago.

• Send (what you think are) nonchalant text messages to that guy you went on a few dates with back in May. You didn't really like him and it didn't go anywhere, but for some reason you feel the need to see what he's up to right now.

• Walk home barefoot through the city streets. Hepatitis be damned; your feet really hurt from wearing cheap heels all night long and five kilometres isn't really that far of a walk anyway.

• Facebook creep your ex. Wind up in a shameful spiral of despair before falling asleep on your keyboard. Wake up at 5:30 a.m. to a photo album titled I Luv U Babe featuring him and his new girlfriend, who you suspect is at least five years younger than you.

• Decide that the remedy for nausea is not water but tequila.

So be sure to proceed with caution on your next night of summertime revelry. Engage in any one of these activities and you will guarantee yourself a miserable morning after.

Worth mentioning

TORONTO. It's part cathedral, part parking meter and part Cadillac. And it's the latest invention out of Great Britain.

It's called the AutoWed Wedding Machine — a kind of vending machine for wedding ceremonies.

It's the brainchild of Sam Lanyon, a 30-year-old electronics engineer.

It's a simple process: You put in $1 and the machine begins to play a wedding march. Then it asks you what kind of ceremony you want: Gay, straight, lesbian or best friend forever.

Once you have selected the type of wedding, AutoWed takes over. If you agree to marry, you press the No. 1 on a computer keyboard. If you don't agree, you press 2 for "escape." After you exchange vows, it dispenses two plastic rings. Once the rings have been exchanged, a voice congratulates you and instructs you to kiss.

With the ceremony over, the vending machine dispenses a receipt with your names on it and asks you to hold on to it. Lanyon admits the ceremony is not legally binding, but designed only as a novelty.

Not the best idea to invite him to lunch

Joey Chestnut scarfed down 62 hotdogs to win his fifth consecutive Fourth of July hotdog-eating contest at Coney Island — the equivalent of about 20,000 calories in 10 minutes.

It wasn't a personal best for the 27-year-old nicknamed Jaws, but it was enough to out-eat second-place finisher Patrick Bertoletti by nine wieners. Chestnut of San Jose, Calif., won $10,000 and the coveted mustard-yellow belt.

"I feel great!" he said, sweat pouring down his face after the contest, adding he was going to drink a lot of water and avoid hotdogs for a few days.

This year, for the first time, the annual contest in front of Nathan's Famous fast food stand was broken into two divisions, one for men and one for women.

Sonya Thomas, known as the "Black Widow" of competitive eating, won with 40 downed dogs, earning her $10,000 and her own pink champion's belt.

Both Thomas and Chestnut broke world records in 2009; he with 68 and she with 41.

Horrible Bosses with a twist

Charlie Day plays a meek dental hygienist who doesn't want to be hit on by his boss, played by Jennifer Aniston ◐ Believable? You be the judge

HEIDI PATALANO
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN NEW YORK

Charlie Day, best known for his illiterate, glue-sniffing character on FX's It's Always Sunny in Philadelphia, has been put in the unlikely position of explaining why being pursued for a sexual liaison by a character resembling Jennifer Aniston is an unpleasant prospect. It's not an easy job.

"Most men don't cheat on their wives. Not all, but close," he offers rather sheepishly. His character in the comedy Horrible Bosses is a dental hygienist for Aniston's man-eating dentist. Devoted to his fiancé, Day's character Dale is terrified by his boss' blackmailing seduction. As the logic of the film goes, he and his buddies, played by Jason Sudeikis and Jason Bateman, decide to kill Dale's boss. Dark as it may seem, Bosses isn't afraid to cover the controversial topics.

"I don't think anything is too taboo to make funny," says Day.

"Murder is a terrible thing. It ruins people's lives. But set against this backdrop, in this idiotic light with these guys that have no business trying to commit a murder go about it, then it becomes a comedy. The things aren't inherently funny themselves. It's how you tell the joke."

That's where the overlap lies between Horrible Bosses and It's Always Sunny in Philadelphia.

He's just wrapped production on the seventh season of the sitcom on which no topic — from abortion to crack smoking — is too crooked or bizarre.

"Managing to fly under the radar enough so that we don't lose our street cred but be a big enough hit that we're actually a very successful show has been a really nice balance," says Day. The next season premieres in September.

Bearded humour

Is facial hair funny?

"Having a beard just makes me look older," says Charlie Day. "Sometimes when I shave it off I feel like I still look like I'm 15. Mac (on Sunny) kind of grows his beard a little bit longer this season. He's definitely funnier, but I've definitely seen some unfunny people with beards. I don't know that it makes people unfunny. I just know that there are plenty of people who grow beards who still remain completely humourless."

Hobo with a Shotgun

Genre: Thriller
Director: Jason Eisener
Stars: Rutger Hauer, Brian Downey, Gregory Smith, Molly Dunsworth

To describe Hobo with a Shotgun as being over the top would be like calling a beaver furry.

Directed by Halifax's Jason Eisener, it's like no other Canadian movie you've seen, and that's OK.

The Hobo (Rutger Hauer) rides the rails into Scum Town, like Clint Eastwood's Man With No Name, looking to buy a lawnmower. Maybe he can start his own gardening business: "You grow it, we cut it." But Hobo can't close his eyes to the carnage around him.

A sadistic capitalist named Drake (Brian Downey), and his stooge sons Slick (Gregory Smith) and Ivan (Nick Bateman) are terrorizing Scum Town by beheading people in the street.

Only Hobo and his new shotgun stand in their way. The lawns will have to wait.

Extras include commentary with Eisener and Hauer, deleted scenes, an alternate ending, video blogs and featurettes.

PETER HOWELL

Of Gods and Men

Genre: Drama
Director: Xavier Beauvois
Stars: Lambert Wilson, Michael Londsdale

A transcendent drama of uplift and inspiration, Of Gods and Men reveals the cavernous divide between heaven and Earth.

Set during the Algerian Civil War of the early 1990s, it's the fact-based-story of seven Christian monks from France, who live harmoniously amongst Muslims in a mountainous village.

When tensions erupt between the Algerian government and Islamic fundamentalists, foreigners are told to leave. The monks' leader, Brother Christian (Lambert Wilson), wants to stay, despite the danger, as the villagers desperately need assistance.

PETER HOWELL

The Company Men

Genre: Drama
Director: John Wells
Stars: Ben Affleck, Tommy Lee Jones, Kevin Costner, Chris Cooper

This tough drama about corporate downsizing has an A-list cast that includes four Oscar winners: Ben Affleck, Tommy Lee Jones, Chris Cooper and Kevin Costner.

The film was written and directed by John Wells, who has been a creative force behind such award-winning TV shows as ER, The West Wing and Southland.

It speaks to an issue that is as current as a newspaper's front page, and plays as almost a companion piece to Up in the Air, Jason Reitman's like-minded film about workers squeezed by a bad economy.

In this case though, the workers are suits who considered themselves bullet-proof.

It's meat-and-potatoes drama, but The Company Men depicts harsh reality truthfully.

Extras include cast and crew interviews and a featurette.

Canadian applicants lose out on chance to join Team Sheen

Actor Charlie Sheen has chosen his "tiger blood" intern and he's not a Canadian.

The fired Two and a Half Men star tweeted last week that Team Sheen welcomed Josh Burstein as its new social media intern. The Los Angeles resident, who works for the Israeli government's economic mission to the U.S., beat 82,000 applicants.

One of them was Sepy Bazzazi, 25, who works in social media for Earls Restaurants in Vancouver. He tweeted his congratulations to Burstein.

Phil Pallen of Belleville, Ont., who was one of the final 50 candidates, ditched his bid last month and accepted an offer to work for American Idol host Ryan Seacrest instead.

Burstein tweeted "Tiger blood, coarsening (sic) through my veins. Excited for the opportunity!"

Anyway, this weekend, he was tasered by cops, reports TMZ.

The site says he was playing music loudly in his car and got mad when the police approached.

We're guessing the line "Don't you know who I am?" drew blanks.

A career-first for Taylor Swift

Taylor Swift recently postponed a show for the first time in her career.

Swift had to postpone Saturday night's sold-out show at the Yum Center in Louisville under doctor's orders because of an illness.

She tweeted the bad news to fans: "This is my first time having to do this. I'm so, so sorry."

Within 20 minutes, hundreds of followers had responded with get-well wishes, which were already among the most popular international trends on Twitter for the day.

Swift postponed the show until Oct. 11. She's due for a short break before returning to the road in Charlotte, North Carolina, on Friday in support of her multi-platinum Speak Now album.

Choice, not money, the key to happiness

New Zealand researchers find that self-expression and life options are more important than having money

CELIA MILNE
LIFE@METRONEWS.CA

Money doesn't buy happiness. But what does? According to a large worldwide study, having choices in life and being able to express yourself are the most important ingredients in being happy.

Researchers in New Zealand collected data from all around the world on what factors contribute to well-being. Altogether, the studies included 420,599 people from 63 countries over several decades, so the science behind their results is very strong.

"The main finding is that money does not buy happiness and well-being," says Dr. Ronald Fischer, lead author, in an email to Metro.

"Choice and autonomy are more directly related to happiness than having lots of money. Autonomy provides you with the options to pursue meaning in your life, to find activities that stimulate and excite you and keep you active," explains Fischer, who is a senior lecturer in psychology and Fellow of the Centre for Applied Cross-Cultural Research at Victoria University of Wellington, New Zealand.

He and colleagues were surprised by the finding that choice and self-expression are more important than money, especially once you have your basic needs met.

"We did not predict we would find these clear patterns when we started and none of our friends or colleagues would have bet on this."

Job searchers take note.

"People may not need to go for the highest paying job, but rather focus on something that fulfills them personally and gives them greater happiness and satisfaction in their life," he says.

He warns that too much of anything is bad.

"Having too many choices or too much autonomy can lead to doubt about what to do, and regret that you aren't making the right choices."

The study was published by the American Psychological Association.

Canadian Bacon Bonanza

Combining bacon with caramel sundae syrup and maple ice cream results in a tantalizing Canadian dessert to serve at parties this summer.

Preparation:

1. In a small bowl, combine bacon and brown sugar, making sure that sugar evenly coats both sides of bacon.
2. Place on outdoor grill over medium heat and grill for 3 to 4 minutes per side or until crispy and golden brown. Let cool.
3. For one serving: In a small bowl, combine syrup, 1 strip of crumbled bacon and sea salt.
4. Meanwhile, place ice cream in a serving dish. Drizzle with caramel-bacon mixture. Garnish with additional bacon and caramel syrup, if needed.

THE CANADIAN PRESS/ SMUCKER FOODS OF CANADA

- 50 ml (1/4 cup) brown sugar
- 30 ml (2 tbsp) caramel-flavoured sundae syrup, plus extra for serving

LUNCH RUSH

ANH CHU
FOOD@METRONEWS.CA

The Dairy Lane Cafe has been nestled in the community of West Hillhurst since 1950 and sources local and organic ingredients where possible.

I ate the Dairy Lane Burger ($11) adding smoked bacon ($2), peppered Gouda ($2.50) and gazpacho ($1).

The thick burger patty — 28-day aged Angus beef from Crystal Creek — was beefy and juicy without being greasy. The grilled bun was soft yet held the burger together nicely.

My friend's turkey and basil burger with basil pesto, sundried tomato jam and roasted red pepper ($15) was well-balanced: savoury and moist with the perfect amount of charred flavour.

Even the single-source bottomless coffee was spot on ($2.95).

The menu also features numerous tempting breakfast items and gluten-free options.

The service is efficient once you are seated. The cosy and bustling diner doesn't take reservations for lunch, but if you have time to wait for a table, it's well worth it.

Celery root steals summer salad spotlight

For Clark Frasier, salads are a staple. "I grew up in California, and so salad has always been considered a principal thing in our diet," Frasier said.

He and partner Mark Gaier run Arrows, an award-winning restaurant in Ogunquit, Maine, known for its extensive on-site gardens that produce the bulk of what appears on the menu.

The pair recently released a new cookbook highlighting some of their favourite recipes, Maine Classics. Included in the book is this recipe for celery root salad with sour cream and herbs.

Preparation:

1. In non-reactive pot over high heat, bring about 2 l (8 cups) of water to boil. Set bowl of ice water next to the stove.
2. Add celery root and onion to boiling water and blanch for 1 minute. Use slotted spoon to transfer celery root and onion to ice water; let cool, then drain and pat dry with paper towels.
3. In bowl, toss celery root and onion with lemon juice, chives, tarragon, basil, sour cream, salt, pepper. Serve chilled.

FORGET THE WEDDING; LOVE IS WHAT REALLY MATTERS

TWO SISTERS

ANDREA & CLAIRE
RELATIONSHIPS@METRONEWS.CA

I'm in love with a great guy who happens to be divorced, and refuses to ever get married again. He says that asking a woman to live together is like asking her hand in marriage, and he's asked me to move in together. I've always assumed I'd get married and we both want to have a child together, but it's clear that if I choose this path, I'm choosing a common law relationship over my dream wedding and the traditions that go with it, and possibly upsetting my parents in the process.

No white for me?

Claire: Dear NWFM,

As Florence and the Machine says, "You've got the love," it's just not taking the form you expected it to.

He loves you enough to want a child with you and to share a home with you — to build a life together. He's offering you the relationship that comes after the wedding day — the quieter, more private form that love takes when the party is over, the gifts have been given and the wedding dress has been stored away. Legally, you'll still have similar rights to those couples who spend $20K on the their big day.

Your parents will be happy when you are happy, whether or not they disapprove in the beginning.

Your child simply needs to be well loved. The question is whether you can be at peace with this version of your life together. If so, throw yourselves a big fat housewarming party/commitment ceremony when you move in, and be grateful you don't have to deal with bridesmaid dresses and demanding in-laws.

Andrea: Dear uncommon-law,

Marriage is like haute couture: sometimes you pull the big bucks and your beloved item stands the test of time, and sometimes it's a cheaply made Taiwanese knock-off that falls apart before you can say "prenup." The point is: put in the effort, time, and tears and you'll get quality.

A piece of paper and an expensive party won't speak to a solid foundation. It's one day out of years, decades even.

The first step to attaining that level of commitment is moving in together.

He obviously feels strongly for you if he's asked, so even if he doesn't adhere to your version of a perfect relationship, it's a really good sign.

I'd say he's doing you a favour by helping you found your own values over your parents, and potentially averting hefty divorce procedures.

TWO SISTERS, 20-SOMETHING ANDREA AND 30-SOMETHING CLAIRE, OFFER THEIR DIFFERING VIEWS ON YOUR RELATIONSHIP ISSUES.

I'm a second-time bride getting married the last week of July. I work full time, will be going on a two-week honeymoon and have two children from a previous marriage to take care of full time. Based on the fact that everyone knows how busy I am, are people honestly expecting me to send thank you notes for their presents?

▶ A simple note can go a long way.

Hello Carole:

Congratulations on your upcoming wedding! I know the answer to your question is one you don't want to hear, but it's yes, you do need to send everyone a thank you note and here's why:

1. People have gone to the trouble of spending time and money shopping for you — and they are just as busy as you!

2. It would be hurtful for guests who might think that your lack of communication means you don't care or value them or their gift.

That said, don't pressure yourself to write all of the notes at one time. Pace yourself. Send one or two per day, or 10 or so per weekend, and soon enough they will be done — I promise!

As my grandmother taught me, you will never be criticised for sending a thank you note, but you will always be criticised for not sending one!

GOOD DEALS CAN BE BAD FOR YOU

What's the "big deal" today? Check your email, Facebook or Twitter and within seconds you'll know it's 50 per cent off rims for your ride or a two-for-one pass to Ashton Kutcher's new flick.

Sites like Groupon get frugal types like me all revved up. They negotiate huge discounts with popular local businesses and pass along savings of 50 to 90 per cent to subscribers.

If you're in the market for a particular product and its price gets slashed, online coupons can save you hundreds of dollars.

Saving money is en vogue and often the topic of water cooler conversation.

But, if you're leading your offices' popularity contest for nabbing the best daily online deal, watch out!

You'll quickly fall from financial grace once your credit card is maxed and you've got nothing more to share with your colleagues.

It's important to ensure you're not spending money unnecessarily simply for the sake of a "sweet deal."

If a fancy trip out to the Fairmont Banff Springs Hotel wasn't part of your travel plans this month, don't buy one.

Sure, it's important to include fun and entertainment in your budget, but not at the expense of building your financial security.

A great deal you can't afford is never a good deal.

More pitfalls of working at home

ON MONEY

ALISON GRIFFITHS
MONEY@METRONEWS.CA

Liberating though it can be, working at home isn't all hanging out in sweats and catching up on daytime TV. Last week I presented seven drawbacks of the home-based job and you readers reminded me of five more.

ISTOCK IMAGES

▶ Alison's money rule: Working at home is a dream for many. Just be aware of the disadvantages before you try it.

1. Lack of spousal support

A spouse who doesn't respect and support what you're doing can turn working at home into a nightmare. In a previous incarnation I had one of those. For instance, reading the papers and magazines, and now browsing the Internet is a big part of my job. But he refused to see it that way, always characterizing it as slacking around. Never mind that he was unemployed!

2. Household chores

Because you work the expectation is you can do household chores, drive kids and aging parents to appointments during your down time. The reality is that down time is limited because you are on your own with no colleagues or assistants to take up the slack. Set boundaries, although it can be tough when family is involved.

3. Kids home sick!

You're home so you can just keep an eye on those sneezing, coughing, feverish kids. Then there are school holidays and snow days, which fall in the lap of the work-at-home parent.

4. Non-custodial drop off

I've never personally experienced this but several readers complained that their ex just drops the kids and says, "You're at home anyway and I've got this big business trip so I thought you could help me out with the kids this month."

It's a tricky situation to deal with in the absence of goodwill and strong communication.

5. Credit scarcity

Banks still look askance at the self-employed. I believe they have a secret, negative category for us.

Assets, sparkling credit score and low debt to income ratio be damned, the work-at-home crowd have a tough time getting things like a business related line of credit without pledging their first born.

I've outlined 12 pitfalls of working at home this week and last. Even so, I wouldn't have it any other way.

On the job

- Fifty-four per cent of those who work at home have a university degree.

We are living in a 'Wanna-Have World'

$3,000 for a new purse? Luxury spending is soaring even in the face of a global debt crisis

Society needs to get a better grip on its rampant consumerism because real consequences lie ahead if the excess isn't reined in, a McGill University professor says in a new book.

Real incomes have been "pretty much flat for most people for 30 years but the level of consumption keeps rising," says Naylor, author of Crass Struggle: Greed, Glitz and Gluttony in a Wanna-Have World.

"What that translates into is consumer debt, mortgage debt and things like that."

Luxury spending has skyrocketed even as the world struggles with a debt crisis.

Among the countries where cash is being flung around the fiercest are the United States and China, which is being seen as a new haven for luxury car and boat manufacturers.

Average Canadians continually hear from government about the fragility of the economy.

Winners

MINNESOTA

- The Wild have certainly addressed some of their offensive shortcomings with the additions of Dany Heatley and Devin Setoguchi. They combined for 48 goals a year ago and have shown in the past they're capable of a much higher output.

WASHINGTON

- Not only did Caps GM George McPhee land a proven veteran in Tomas Vokoun — at an extremely cap-friendly price tag of $1.5 million US — he also obtained a potential lottery pick from Colorado for unpredictable goalie Semyon Varlamov.

N.Y. RANGERS

- The addition of Brad Richards doesn't solve all of New York's problems, but it drastically improves the outlook for next year. He'll slot in as the No. 1 centre and should make life a little easier for Marian Gaborik.

TORONTO

- Despite immense pressure to start winning immediately, the Leafs have avoided getting in cap trouble by overspending. The team's only free-agent signing, Tim Connolly, will strengthen a weak group at centre.

BUFFALO

- They overpaid for defenceman Christian Ehrhoff and forward Ville Leino, but when was the last time you could say that about the Sabres? Buffalo established itself as an off-season winner simply by making a splash in the free-agent pool.

After the off-season gold rush

A look at which NHL clubs have come out ahead in a few weeks of frenzied roster moves

Losers

FLORIDA

- To be fair, the Panthers were pretty much in a no-win situation. GM Dale Tallon acknowledged as much at the draft when he said the need to spend up to the $48.3-million US salary floor would actually make his team worse.

PHILADELPHIA

- GM Paul Holmgren has made a habit of doing things his own way. The culture change that comes with the departure of Mike Richards and Jeff Carter probably won't be enough to overcome the drop in talent that accompanies it.

DALLAS

- An uncertain ownership issue has made the job of building a team particularly tough on GM Joe Nieuwendyk, who simply couldn't come up with the kind of offer needed to keep Brad Richards in the fold.

CALGARY

- A team that missed the playoffs a year ago lost veteran defenceman Robyn Regehr in exchange for nothing more than salary-cap flexibility. While that certainly has value in today's NHL, GM Jay Feaster has yet to put it to use.

COLORADO

- After letting both of his goaltenders walk away, GM Greg Sherman is taking a bit of a gamble. He's banking on the duo of Semyon Varlamov and J.S. Giguere making his team much better.

Heatley welcomes trade to Minnesota

EZRA SHAW/GETTY IMAGES

"Last year wasn't the greatest year for me personally, but I'm looking forward to getting back there."
DANY HEATLEY

The Minnesota Wild have been searching for the kind of dynamic goal-scorer who can put the puck in the net in the blink of an eye, a player who won't hesitate to let a shot rip from anywhere in the opposing goaltender's zip code, ever since Marian Gaborik left in 2009.

Here comes Dany Heatley, who never met a shot on goal he didn't like, determined to show the rest of the league he can still light the lamp with the best of them.

The Wild landed Heatley from San Jose on Sunday night, sending forward Marty Havlat to the Sharks in a straight-up swap of two 30-year-old wingers. Heatley said yesterday he was excited to be coming to Minnesota and couldn't wait to prove that last year's sub-par season was a fluke.

$19M

Heatley has three years and $19 million US left on his contract, while Havlat has four years and $20 million remaining on the deal he signed with Minnesota two years ago.

"As a goal-scorer and a player, you want to be that guy," Heatley said.

Heatley had back-to-back 50-goal seasons in 2005-06 and 2006-07 for the Ottawa Senators, but finished with only 26 goals last season for the Sharks. Heatley played a month and a half with a broken hand and said he had several other nagging injuries that held him back.

After the Sharks flamed out in the playoffs yet again, San Jose GM Doug Wilson was looking to switch things up. He found a willing partner in Wild GM Chuck Fletcher, whose team has missed the playoffs in both of his seasons as the team's top executive.

Fletcher said the biggest priority heading into the off-season was injecting some juice into a team that finished 30th in the league in shots on goal and had too many players who were better suited to passing and setting up others than finishing the plays themselves.

Havlat seemed to be one of those players. He tied for the team lead last season with 62 points, but only 22 goals. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
